Anyone can understand the workmanship of the caricature

The first time I really drew a caricature was when I was 18 years old, wondering if I should take an art school.

It was at that time. Originally I liked drawing, but to measure my ability

I drew a caricature. Landscape paintings are hard to tell whether they are good or bad, so to speak, self-satisfaction

With a caricature that you can feel in the world of

I wanted to measure my ability. As a result, I went on the path of mechanical engineering,

After that, I occasionally drew caricatures.

I drew it all at once 10 years ago. Looking at the caricature of a certain caricature course guide, "Ya

I was impressed by the fact that professionals are different, so I decided to take the course. That

There were times, but in the five years until the end of the course, a total of 180 sheets

The work was exhibited at the Central Hospital. Is it an acquaintance?

Introduced by the hospital gallery

Since there is a vacancy in the tool, it will be exhibited.

I tried it. Something big response

I didn't get it, but it's similar to me

"Similar!" "Funny" while looking at the face picture

It's good!"

I'm very happy.

How to draw a caricature

When drawing a caricature, the first step is to select a model. I'm thinking of choosing a person who is in season now

However, it is difficult unless you are a person who can enjoy drawing, that is, a person who has a good impression.

is not it. Next, I choose the base photo, but even an entertainer has an image of that person.

It's very difficult to find a photo that you can feel. Is there one in ten? Yeah

The hardest part is finding a photo.

In drawing, sharp on A4 Kent paper

This is an important point. By doing so below

At the stage of writing, the picture looks quite similar

I am not particular about tools. first time

By that time, I used acrylic paint.

But after learning about Copic in the course

I understand if I say it's difficult

Is it easy?

I'm doing Kendo, and I go to the Dojo in Fuji City and the Dojo in Numazu City three times a week.

vinegar. "Do not bother people" "Be careful about weak people" "Always learn humbly"

I practice "to" myself and teach children at the dojo. Children through kendo

I want to grow up. Recently, SDGs have been said, but Japanese people have been doing that for a long time.

I think it was something I was trying to do.

Currently, there will be a promotion examination next year at the 5th dan, but for those who have been promoted at the same dojo, to commemorate the promotion

I draw a caricature and give it as a gift. Not only celebrities and celebrities, but also requests

I also draw caricatures of most individuals. I'm glad I drew a caricature

Is when you were pleased to hand over the picture. Say "I like it" instead of flattering

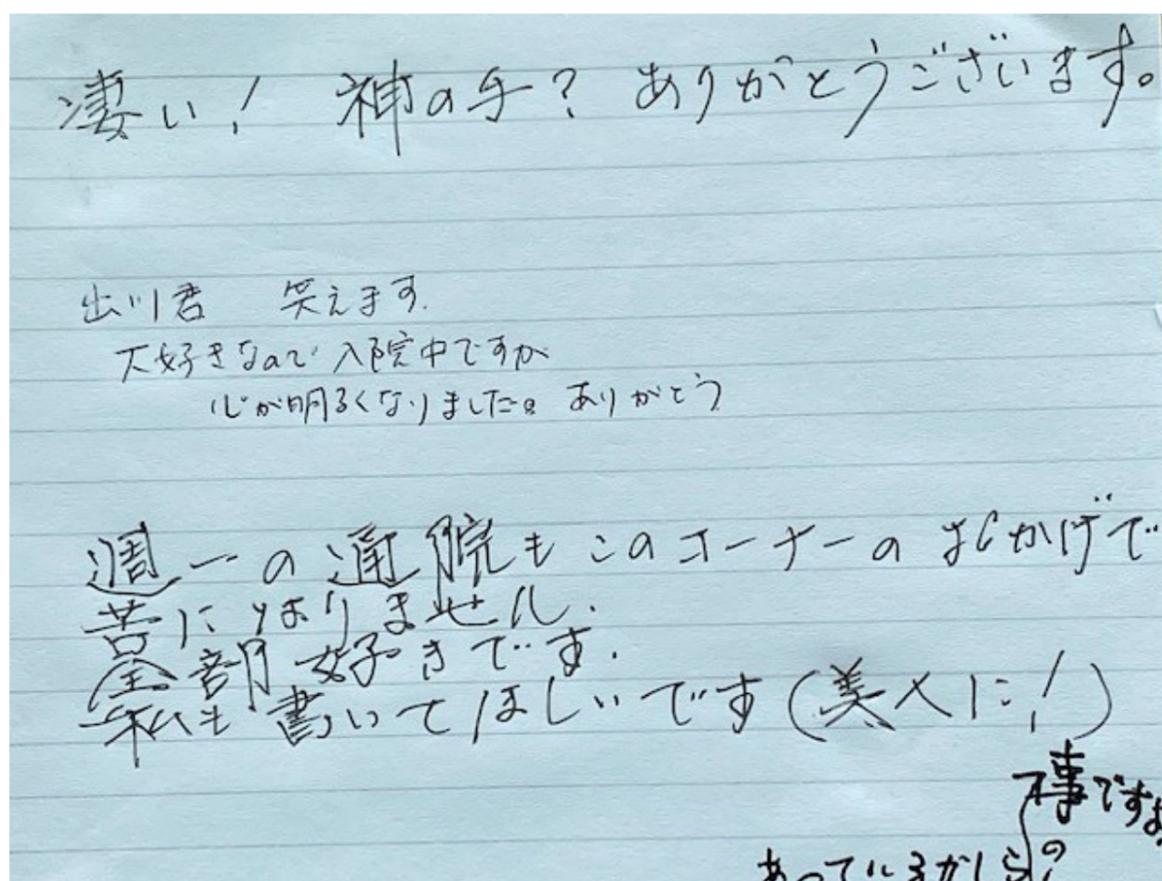

It will be very rewarding to receive it. Also, a good picture that you can convince yourself

When I come, I feel like I've done it.

I wish I could draw even a calyx myself. Spicy in a long life

There were times. But even at that time, when I draw a portrait, I immerse myself in another world.
 I can head. When I feel uneasy about living, I wonder what to do in the future
 When I do, paintings and kendo become the basis of my heart, and I wonder if I can go on the path of belief.
 It made me feel like I would. And as a result, my community Spread out.

I think it's great to have a caricature. Take advantage of this
 I would be happy if everyone would be happy. I received a request to exhibit
 I also feel a sense of mission to do what I can do.
 increase. The last place I end up with is "the heart of my heart."
 I would like to continue drawing forever, and after retirement, I will be able to hold a portrait class.
 I hope.
